(b) Resignation of Chief Information Officer

On March 16, 2012, Mr. Eric C. Dean resigned from his position as the Chief Information Officer of Liquidity Services, Inc. (the "Company"), effective as of April 1, 2012.

Mr. Timothy Madden will assume Mr. Dean's day-to-day responsibilities with respect to oversight of the Company's Application Development, Technology Architecture and Distributed Infrastructure. Mr. Madden will report to the Office of the Chief Information Officer, which office will be occupied on an interim basis by the Company's Chief Executive Officer, Mr. William P. Angrick, III, and to the Company's executive leadership team. This structure will enable the Company to remain focused on executing its current information technology product roadmap and infrastructure investment plans; and continue the efficient integration of existing and acquired businesses with the full participation and support of its executive leadership team.

Management, together with members of the Company's information technology organization, will conduct a national search for an experienced Chief Information Officer with the expertise necessary to support the Company's unique, technology-driven enterprise. In the interim, the Company will maintain its commitment to product advancement and investments in infrastructure, while continuing to support its ongoing business relationships and initiatives.
